POLITICS

The Political Pot Sizzles—Tickets to Choose From—Municipal and School Elections Mixed

Politics—Who said it? Why, the woods is full of them—it, we mean. If you see two men standing on the sidewalk, conversing, it's dollars to doughnuts that they are discussing the merits, or most likely the demerits, of some candidate. And the ladies, bless them, they are doing their duty manfully, and catching on to the fine points of the game with great facility. The municipal election of course occupies the front of the stage, but the school trustee contest comes in a close second, with the bond issue question looming up in the background. Let's see; the ball was started by the Citizen's League putting up the ticket as mentioned by us last week, consisting of Messrs. Lane, Watson and Howard for trustees, H. H. Whaley for city clerk, and G. B. Hoffman for treasurer. Then along comes the "Progressive League" two days later, and mixed things. These nominations were Messrs. Showalter, Lawson and Watson for trustees, Woodberry for city clerk, and Hoffman for treasurer. Then another bunch of citizens, looking crossways at both these tickets, met and nominated for trustees, Watson, Tower (A. W.) and R. H. Wells. Up to the time we go to press these three tickets comprise the full returns as far as we know, but we are assured there is more to follow. Sidney Dell, our esteemed fellow citizen, is understood to be manufacturing one that will sweep the board clean. The ladies have not yet taken action; five mere men on the board of trustees doesn't seem to be quite a square deal, but the campaign is young.

For grammar school trustees the following have been endorsed by the Citizens' League; Mrs. J. N. Witham, Mr. J. E. Hellyer, a third to be named Thursday evening. The Progressives name F. S. Balthis, J. O. Elliott and A. B. Heacock. The Independent Voters' Club, A. B. Heacock, E. S. Westlake and F. S. Balthis. It is understood that Mr. R. W. Meeker, present incumbent, will also be a nominee. The Progressive League names G. E. Williams, D. Griswold and C. W. Young for high school trustees.

Perhaps some of them have got away from us, but that seems to be about all that are just now in the running. Next week we will try to find some more loyal men (women) and true, willing to serve their country even at the ballot's mouth.

Just now there seem to be only four elections in sight for the next thirty days. They are as follows:

March 28, bond election, $35,000 for school house at Casa Verdugo.

March 30, annexation of portion of Casa Verdugo and the most of Verdugo Canyon.

April 5, regular spring election of grammar school trustees.

April 8, municipal election.

Notice on another page our great offer—McGroarty's History of California; West Coast Magazine, and this paper, for one year—All for $4.50.

SUCCESSFUL AFFAIR.

The cafeteria supper given by the ladies of the Congregational church on Brand boulevard last Saturday evening was a great success. The room was much too small for the crowd that waited to be served and a number of people turned back from the entrance. All of the food was disposed of and the treasury enriched to the extent of $65. The ladies are appreciative of the patronage they received.

FREE DELIVERY TO BE EXTENDED

Glendale, Tropico and Vicinity Will Benefit by Additions to Los Angeles' Carrier Force

As announced in Los Angeles papers, the Los Angeles postoffice has received an addition of twenty-nine carriers to its force. This will have an important bearing on the delivery service in Glendale and Tropico. On April 1 the Tropico postoffice will be abolished and that city be served as Glendale now is, through the Los Angeles office with free delivery. There will be important additions to the free delivery zone in Glendale. Just what they will be we cannot state at present, but there will be at least an additional carrier added to the force distributing letters from the Glendale branch.

MEETING TO CALL BOND ELECTION.

A meeting of the freeholders of this grammar school district was called to assemble at the High School Thursday evening of last week, and, as usual with such meetings, was very poorly attended. The object of the meeting was to instruct the trustees as to calling an election to vote on a bond issue for the purpose of purchasing ground and building a school house in North Glendale (Casa Verdugo) Mr. C. H. Toll and other representatives from the section particularly interested were present to present their case. After some discussion, Mr. Toll made a motion, which was duly seconded and voted, that the directors call an election to authorize a bond issue of $35,000, of which sum $15,000 was to be devoted to the purchase of five acres of ground and the remainder to erecting the building. The site recommended fronts 245 feet on Central avenue and 721 feet on Dryden street. The trustees have called the election to be held March 28.

Mrs. Thomas Wood of Chestnut street was hostess to a party of twenty-one which picnicked at Venice on Sunday.

ELECTROCUTED

Telephone Wires Fall Across Electric Car Feed Wire

About 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, as a team of mules drawing a dirt wagon was being driven along Eagle Rock road about opposite the residence of Mr. E. C. Frank, they became entangled or ran against some telephone wires that had become detached from a pole, and which it seems were resting on the feed wire of the Glendale and Eagle Rock railroad. The team consisted of four fine animals, three of which were prostrated by the voltage they received. One of them regained consciousness and the use of its faculties in the course of a half hour, but was badly burned about the legs; the other two were killed instantly. They belonged to Mr. J. E. Edwards, a contractor, of Eagle Rock.

STATE MOTHERS' CONGRESS IN GLENDALE, FRIDAY, MARCH 8.

The Glendale Union Parent-Teacher Federation is preparing for one of the largest assemblies of women ever held in Glendale, the occasion being Reciprocity Day for the California Congress of Mothers to be held in the High School Auditorium all day on March 8.

Special cars will leave Los Angeles at 9:30. The morning session will open at 10:15, and the afternoon session at 2 o'clock.

The day's program is in charge of Mrs. Mary Howard Gridley of Brand Boulevard.

Dr. Jessie A. Russell, president of the Glendale Federation, will make the opening address of welcome. Mrs. A. L. Hamilton, state president of the Congress of Mothers, will respond to the address of welcome. Following this will be a piano solo by Miss Ruby Dale, an invocation by Rev. Eugene Haines, and outlines of department work by various state chairmen.

During the noon hour lunch will be served in the gymnasium, followed by a short social hour.

The afternoon session will include a piano solo by Prof. Clarence Krimball, an address by Prof. C. W. Waddell of the State Normal School, vocal solo by Mrs. Stella May Orth, an address on "The Spirit of Youth" by Miss Virginia Pease, principal of Polytechnic Elementary School of Pasadena, and a vocal trio by Mrs. A. L. Bryant, Mrs. C. W. Burket and Miss Bess Hollingsworth.

At 4:30 the guests will be taken in automobiles throughout the city of Glendale.

Mrs. L. B. Goty, vice-president of the State Congress of Mothers of Illinois, will be honor guest of the occasion.

THE "TAILOR-MADE TOWN."

The opening of the Panama Canal will find Southern California industrially prepared for the immense traffic which must spring up as a result of this work if the plans of J. S. Torrence and others interested in the Dominguez Land Company and the Dominguez estate are fulfilled.

It is the intention of these men to prepare a tailor-made industrial city for the industries which must follow the completion of the Panama canal. Plans have already been made for expenditures that will run into millions of dollars and already great sums have been expended in the new industrial city which is to spring up between Los Angeles and the harbor.

The purchase of 730 acres of land for addition to the townsite has just been completed and a part of the $730,000 purchase price has been paid over.

In addition to this, one thousand model homes for employes in the factory district will be constructed for sale on easy terms. All telegraph, telephone and electric wires will be placed underground in a conduit system; water will be fully piped; the sewerage system will be completed and gas mains installed before the pavements are laid in order that these may not be torn up during the growth of the city. Parks, libraries, playgrounds and vicic governments will be provided.

On Sunday last the Rev. G. R. Messias assumed charge of St. Mark's mission of the Episcopal church on Fourth and Isabel streets and preached to a fine congregation. At the same service Mr. Frank Shelby, the western field secretary of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew, made an earnest address to the men of the church inviting them to organize themselves for aggressive work and for the upbuilding of the parish. At 3 o'clock in the afternoon a meeting of men for the purpose of organizing a chapter of the brotherhood was held, and the spirit of earnest purpose manifested by the men gathered gives promise of some good work which the men of St. Mark's intend to accomplish. Mr. Messias begins his work in Glendale with a most encouraging outlook and with the united help of his people ought to see the church grow very rapidly in our midst.

TRIBUTE OF RESPECT TO THE LATE NATHANIEL SIMPSON

A copy of the Ballymena Weekly Telegraph under date of Feb. 12th, has been received containing an account of the action taken by the Antrim Guardians in regard to the death of Nathaniel Simpson at Glendale recently. Mr. Simpson was for a long time, until two years ago when he came to Caliofrnia for his health, the master of the Ballymena workhouse.

The chairman of the board expressed regret for Mr. Simpson's death and spoke feelingly of his faithful, efficient work as an official of the country. A motion was unanimously adopted expressing the deep sorrow of the members of the board and requesting the clerk to convey to Mrs. Simpson, at Glendale, their sincere condolence. The motion passed in silence, the members standing.

SOCIALIST LECTURE.

Alexander Irvine addressed a large audience at Filger's Hall last Friday evening. Mr. Irvine is an able speaker and kept his audience interested to the end of his discourse. His address was in semi-religious vein and he made the claim that the Socialists have taken up what the Christians have cast aside of their own religion.

Gauntlet Lodge No. 129, K. of P. of Los Angeles, will confer the first rank on fifteen candidates in long tableau form, on March 13th, in K. of P. hall, Glendale. All knights are urgently requested to be present.

THE SCHOOLS

Affairs at the High School—School Elections

A fine serviceable umbrella rack, the handiwork of that department, is doing service in the lobby during the present wet spell.

Mr. Moyse has in preparation a new system of keeping school accounts. He has gone back to the opening of school in the new building in 1908 and will have arranged in one book for ready reference every item of expenditure by the school. This will be kept up to date and open to inspection by every one interested. This is in line with the publication of the NEWS from time to time of these expenditures.

Three games of the interclass series of baseball have been played. On account of the unsettled condition of the weather Tuesday the game scheduled for that date was postponed. This delay will interfere with the practice of the team to be chosen to represent the high school in its games in the City League, but by stiffer practice they may be able to get into shape by the opening of the league.

The choruses of the music department are selecting the songs for commencement. On Baccalaureate Sunday a chorus of 100 voices will sing.

The Latin play "Phormio," given by the Latin department, March 1, was a great success. All of the students who took part deserve much credit for their splendid work. It was largely attended by the Latin scholars of most of the high schools and colleges of the county.

Invitations had been sent to the other high schools of this and adjoining counties and acceptances had been received from the following, all of which had representatives present: Los Angeles, Covina, Venice, Long Beach, Azusa, Monrovia, San Dimas, San Fernando, Huntington, Orange, Santa Monica, Burbank and Whittier. It is estimated that there were 225 visitors present from Glendale, making a total attendance of nearly 400.

The rain of March 4th did not prevent the Freshmen from defeating the Seniors in baseball by a score of 6-2.

The class of 1915 is feeling very much elated over the fact that they have not lost a game so far in the baseball season.

Members of the Senior class are making arrangements to have their pictures taken for their number of the Stylus.

Julius Kranz, violinist, a former member of the Junior class, will give a recital at the high school on Saturday evening, March 16. He will be assitsed by a noted soprano and pianist, both from Los Angeles.

ANNIVERSARY DINNER.

Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Peterson of 437 Adams street entertained at their home Saturday evening, March 2, in honor of the birthday anniversary of Mr. David Filger. The dinner was planned as a pleasant surprise for the honor guest. Artistic and effective decorations were arranged with pale pink carnations and ferns. An immense birthday cake, surmounted by seventy-eight candles, was one of the prettiest features of the evening. Dainty favors and place cards marked covers laid for ten guests. Miss Estelle Filger assisted Mrs. Peterson in receiving and entertaining throughout the evening.

Genius at Table.

It would appear that the man of genius usually requires a large supply of substantial food. Intellectual work demands full nutrition to repair the waste of brain tissue. Scott was wont to attribute his extraordinary capacity for continuous work to his good digestion and the wholesome restraints of his appetite in his youth. "I have as keen an appetite now as any man," he said, "but I know when to stop."

Mirabeau is stated to have been an enormous feeder, eating as much at a meal as would suffice three ordinary men. Talleyrand was also a noted eater. Goethe and Napoleon ate large quantities of food, but cared little for the quality. Bismarck was noted for his appetite, which was insatiable, but his food was of the simplest.

Many stories are told of the gross delight in eating evinced by the two Dumases, father and son, one of which is that the younger, being overtaken by a storm, took refuge in a hotel near Paris. Twenty-four turkeys were hanging upon the spit.

"And all for a single traveler," exclaimed the host.

"C'est mon pere!" exclaimed Alexandre. He was right.

Averting a Defeat.

A certain political boss always controlled his delegations to the conventions, and the delegates voted the way he told them to—and not until he did tell him.

At one convention a delegate presented a resolution that the boss favored, but had not heard about soon enough to post his delegates as to how they should vote on it.

The chairman of the convention put the question, "All in favor of this resolution say aye."

There were a few ayes, and the boss' delegates looked at him inquiringly. Seeing that he would not have time to pass the word and wanting the resolution passed, he dashed down the aisle toward the chairman, waving his hands and shouting:

"Don't put the negative! Don't put the negative! I did that once and got in a —— of a fix."—Saturday Evening Post.

An Expensive Slip.

A well dressed man was hurrying along the Rue de Passy, Paris, when he slipped and, falling forward, dashed his elbow through the window of a wine shop. The proprietor rushed out to claim the price of his window, and a large crowd gathered to see fair play. The man who had broken the window protested that he had no money. "Search him!" shouted some one in the crowd. There were no policemen about, so the wine shop keeper and a few friends took the law into their own hands, searched the man's pockets and found a 500 franc note. The crowd advised the wine shop keeper to pay himself well for his broken window. He took 50 francs to pay for his broken glass, and the unpopular man who had broken it went away with a torn coat and 450 francs change. The 500 franc note was a forgery.

Honey Bread.

In Europe, where the food value of honey seems to be much better understood than in the United States, enormous quantities are used. Of late years we seem to be waking to a realization of the value of honey as a wholesome and delicious article of food and also as to its preservative qualities. Cakes and sweet breads made with sugar soon become dry and crumbly and to get the good of them must be eaten when fresh. But where they are made up with honey they seem to retain their moist freshness indefinitely. In France honey bread a year or eighteen months old is preferred to that just made. They say, "It has ripened." It is the preservative or, rather, the unchanging quality of honey that makes it so popular with the best confectioners.—Christian Herald.

Dances In Sardinia.

Sardinian dancing is unlike any other. It is a kind of shuffling with the feet as the dancers, holding hands, move to and fro, the women on one side of the dancing ground and the men on the other, till they have worked round to the opposite sides, while the las launeddas is played by a man who walks up and down between the dancers. As a rule, the men and women do not mix, whether dancing or not, but keep each to their own side. The dances take place on Sundays or feast days in some plaza of the village, but hardly ever in the big town.

Friendly Warning.

Rural Justice—I'll have to fine ye $25 fer exceedin' th' speed limit. Motorist (wildly) — What! It's a condemned outrage! Why, I'll swear I wasn't going more than eight miles an hour. Rural Justice (solemnly)—You do an' it'll cost ye $50 more fer perjury, b'gosh, right now—Puck.

It Really Does.

"The rain falls alike on the just and the unjust."

"A good arrangement."

"Why so?"

"Seems to afford considerable satisfaction to both classes." — Chicago Journal.

Appropriate.

"When I was a tiny boy with ringlets," said the man with little hair, "they used to call me Archie."

"I suppose now they call you Archibald."

Love.

At twenty love is a rosy dream, at thirty it is a thrilling reality, at forty it is a calm contentment, and at fifty it is a reminiscence.

Books and an Impudent Rascal.

Book buying has its joys, but there comes a time when "weeding out" has to be undertaken. The late Churton Collins crammed his house with books. Then one day he realized that some would have to go. A man from a bookshop was sent for to look at them, writes L. C. Collins in his memoir of his father. "* * * The following colloquy ensued: 'Have you selected the ones you are prepared to offer a price for?' 'They're no good to me, guv'nor.' 'What, none of them?' 'No, not one.' After a pause somebody interposed, saying that there really was no room for the books and that the man had better have them for nothing. Thoroughly indignant, my father, however, at length consented. The man then remarked, 'That'll be half a crown.' 'What do you mean—what for?' exclaimed my father in a restrained tone of voice. 'For taking them away,' said the man. 'Leave the house, you impudent rascal!' at last roared the justly incensed professor. And so the books remained."—London Chronicle.

A Cunning Little Bird.

A naturalist had been searching for the eggs of the little dunlin in Siberia and came upon a nest. The bird quietly slipped off and began to walk around the man, now and then pecking on the ground, as if feeding, seldom going more than six feet from him and often approaching within eighteen inches. The tameness of the bird was almost ludicrous. She seemed so extremely tame that the man almost thought for the moment that he could catch her, and, getting on all fours, he crept quietly toward her. As soon as he began to move from the nest the bird's manner entirely changed. She shuffled along the ground as if lame. She dropped her wings, as if unable to fly, and occasionally rested on her breast with drooping wings, as if dying. Finally when she eluded him and darted into the undergrowth he found that he had lost the location of the nest.

Tranquillity of Liszt.

Liszt was a sweet souled character. One day two of his friends, musicians, resolved to put the maestro into a passion. "Which one of his habits," they inquired, "would most seriously trouble him were he deprived of it?"

"Perhaps," was the answer, "he would suffer most if deprived of a well made bed."

The two confederates, with a louis, bought over a servant to their designs. She was not, it was agreed, to make his bed for that night.

Liszt slept badly and the next morning simply said, "You have forgotten to make my bed."

For two days following she neglected making the bed, and on the third day the maestro simply said:

"I see that you have decided not to make my bed. Well, let it alone. I have come to accustom myself to it."—Cri de Paris.

Artist and Counterfeiter.

There used to be an old German counterfeiter in this country who was a veritable wonder with the brush and pen. This man literally painted pictures of twenty dollar notes which were works of art. He used no tools except his pens and brushes, and it took him a week to do the portrait of a banknote. He figured that his handicap was worth about $3 a day and worked under the idea that the world owned him a fair living and should not object if his talent led him toward portrait painting, with twenty dollar bills for models. Even jail terms failed to impress him seriously with his wrongdoing. A collector of curios once offered $500 for one of his specimens of bill portraiture, and the value of some others was said to be even greater, so marvelous was the delicacy of his brush work.

Macaulay's Torrent of Talk.

"Macaulay improves! Macaulay improves!" Sydney Smith remarked one day. "I have observed in him of late flashes of—silence." The "sonorous vivacity" of this enormous talker nettled Smith, who found it impossible often to voice his own wit and wisdom. "I wish I could write poetry like you," he complained to a friend. "I would write an 'Inferno,' and I would put Macaulay among a number of disputants and gag him!"

Another contemporary described Macaulay as "slopping all over on every subject and standing in the slops."

Followed the Example of Cato.

In the first year of the last century London affected great admiration for Cato's suicide, the feeling being aroused by Addison's play. A gentleman named Budgell, after witnessing its performance, threw himself into the Thames on his way home. His body was recovered, and on it was found a scrap of paper with these words: "What Cato did and Addison approved must needs be right."

Everybody Has Trouble.

"I can't get a new hat because the children need shoes."

"I'm in the same boat."

"Why, you have no children."

"True, but I can't get a new dress because the auto needs tires."—Pittsburgh Post.

Accomplished.

"She's a clever conversationalist."

"Very. She can even make a man who is talking about himself stop to listen."—Detroit Free Press.

Followed the Prescription.

"My doctor said I needed a change."

"And did you act on his advice?"

"Yes. I employed another doctor."—Boston Transcript.

Children have more need of models than of critics.—Joubert.

The Lotus Flower.

Poets and novelists alike have given mythical texture and color to the lotus. The elder Dumas spoke of a lotus flower "pure white and with petals as delicate as fine muslin." Nor did the ancients treat the matter with more truth. Herodotus spoke of the lotus as of a plant which habitually descended below the surface of the water at sunset to return to view only with the reappearance of the sun. The lotus known to modern man goes below the surface of the water, like all nymphaeas, when its beauty and its freshness have passed and when the time has come to ripen its seed pod. Then by the law of life it closes its corolla and goes away from the air and the sunshine down into the water to prepare for the future of its family. It goes at the time when the sun sets, but it does not reappear. When it goes down as an individual it is gone forever. The petals described by Dumas as being "as white as the snows of Himalaya" are not pure white, nor can anything be called with justice "as white as the lotus flower," because a lotus flower may be red or blue as well as white.—Harper's.

A Porterhouse Steak.

According to the Encyclopaedia Britannica, the word "steak" is apparently derived from Icelandic "steik," used in the same sense as the English word, "which meant properly roasted meat, from steikja, to roast—that is, placed on a stick or peg of wood before the fire (compare Swedish, stek; Danish, stek, roast meat)."

The same authority says: "A 'porterhouse' steak is a choice cut of steak from the loin, so named, apparently, first in New York from a well known 'porter house' and eating house where chops, steaks, etc., and porter or stout were served, at which these steaks were a specialty.

"A steak grilled between two other steaks, which are not served after the cooking is finished, is also sometimes called a 'porterhouse' steak."

Not in these days of high cost meat would such a practice as the latter be very generally followed, however.—National Provisioner.

Lord Brougham's Dream.

Lord Brougham was one of the most stubborn believers in the "common sense" explanation of ghostly appearances as dreams. At Edinburgh university he and an intimate friend drew up an agreement written with their blood that whichever of them died first should appear to the survivor. Years passed, the friend was in India, and Brougham had almost forgotten his existence. Arriving late one night at an inn in Sweden, Brougham had a hot bath, and was going to get out of it when he looked toward the chair on which he had left his clothes and saw his friend sitting on it. Brougham seems then to have fainted. On getting home he received a letter announcing that the other had died in India at the very time. Yet the incident, which most people would put down to telepathy, at least, was dismissed by Brougham as a mere dream and pure coincidence.

A Rogue Elephant.

In "Big Game Shooting in Upper Burma" Major Evans tells of a famous rogue elephant that had for some time terrorized the jungle and that had finally been laid low by a bullet from the major's rifle. The author says: "He measured nine feet seven inches at the shoulders and had but one tusk. That, however, was a beauty and weighed close to forty pounds. The other tusk had been broken off at the root, probably in a fight. I took a bunch of maggots as big as a football out of the broken tusk. The poor beast must have endured agonies similar to a toothache. No wonder that he had turned rogue! I believe that nearly every rogue elephant is suffering from some physical hurt or disease that causes him constant pain and turns him from an inoffensive beast into a savage man hunter."

Wasted Wit.

"Crude country, America," the visiting Englishman condescended to say.

"As how?" we ventured to ask.

"I see by this mawning's paper that a man was held up and robbed beah yestehday in broad daylight. Such things nevah could happen in London."

"No, of course not. You never have any broad daylight in London."

Smart Business.

The people of a country town not far from Edinburgh received a shock recently, says a London weekly. One day they were startled by a lavish display on the hoardings of posters bearing in large letters the announcement, "He is coming." Who "he" was or when "he" was coming was nowhere stated, and the folks were left in anxiety until a week later, when another display appeared bearing the words, "He is here!" and the public were also informed that "he" was a mysterious wonder who would that night appear at the town hall and perform feats of magic and mystery such as had never been previously witnessed. This was a treat indeed for the inhabitants, and on the night advertised the hall was filled to its utmost capacity. The anxious moment arrived, and up went the curtain. But, to the surprise of the audience, nothing could be seen except a larger poster bearing these words: "He has gone." He had, too, and taken all the admission money with him. Only a few of the victims enjoyed the joke.

A Strange Incident.

A singular episode marked the visit of the ex-Empress Eugenie to the grave of her son. The journey to Cape Town—it was in 1880—was undertaken when the stricken mother was in feeble health. There she rested and then, with a large party as escort, proceeded north and after a wearisome experience came near to the place where "Lulu" fell, but ordered a halt because she felt herself too weak to proceed. That night, unable to sleep, she wandered from her tent. Aimlessly she strode in the brush till suddenly the fragrance of verbenas, her son's favorite flower, arrested her attention. Guided by the odor, she walked on, but her strength failed, and she fell and was found unconscious by the servants who had followed her. Next day they took her to the grave. It was the spot where she had fainted. The verbenas were there, but they were dead.

It is easier for the generous to forgive than for offense to ask it.—Thomson.

Buried In Amber.

Amber is supposed to be the hardened gum of fossil trees. Lumps of it found in the natural state almost always contain foreign substances. Insects, berries, leaves, bits of bark and even cobwebs with drops of dew upon them are among the curious captives caught in amber and preserved there for all time. One of the finest pieces of amber ever found contains a scorpion, which must have fallen into the sticky mass in a dead condition, for the creature made no struggle. Often in the pieces containing insects it is easy to see by the disturbance of the substance that the insects must have fought hard for their lives, as the lines of light are broken and made prismatic for a short distance all around them. But this scorpion met his death before he was embalmed in the substance, for the amber is as clear as wine. In polishing the piece, however, a part of the scorpion's head suffered, and this reveals the fact that all that remains of him has become lime. He was of the small yellow variety and not particularly formidable.—New York Press.

The Lonesome American Millionaire.

An English critic of American traits, writing in the Metropolitan Magazine, says: "In America the lot of the rich man is not a very happy one. He has very little to spend his money on. In England you might have an income of a hundred thousand pounds a year and still might possibly feel the want of money, because the means of spending money in England are almost unlimited. In America a man who had four or five feudal establishments, with great households of servants and dependents attached to each, a steam yacht, a racing stable and a stud of motor cars would be an isolated, lonely and unoccupied man. There would be no one to play with him. He might possess all these things, but he could not do anything with them. They do not belong to any recognized life in the country, whereas in England the man who is born to such possessions finds a whole society of other people also born to them whose life is spent in administering and using them, quite often with a grave sense of duty, self sacrifice and public service which is beyond the comprehension of any but the most intelligent Americans, simply because it is beyond their experience."

The First Flank Attack.

We have a record in the book of Joshua of "the stratagem whereby Ai was taken." This tells us how 5,000 men were set in ambush behind the city, so that when the king of Ai and his hosts were drawn forward to the fight a flank attack was made with overwhelming success by the warriors of Israel.

Not less disastrous was the fate of Leonidas and his brave little band of heroes when the Persians at Thermopylae, led by a traitor, took them in the rear, 480 B. C.

It was by a masterly maneuver nearly 300 years later that Hannibal dealt one of his heaviest blows against the hosts of Rome. Having concealed his brother Mago, with 2,000 horse and foot soldiers, among the reeds, he enticed the Roman forces across the river Trebia. The legions fought bravely and held their own until Mago, rising from ambush, attacked them in the rear and routed them.

Old Trotting Records.

Dexter, 2:17¼, held his record as champion for four years, when it was wrested from him by Goldsmith Maid in 1871, whose mile that year was 2:17. Three years later the Maid trotted to a new mark of 2:14, which was not beaten until 1878, when Rarus clipped three-quarters of a second from the mark. St. Julian and Maud S. followed soon after with new records of 2:11¾ and 2:10¼ respectively. This was in 1881, and the mare held her place against all comers from that year until 1885, when to a high wheeled sulky she trotted the fastest mile ever recorded at that time and possibly the best ever chronicled under the same conditions, her time being 2:08¾. Then along came the pneumatic tire with low wheel and exit the slow records, for since that innovation trotting marks have been held but a comparatively short time by any one horse.—Horseman.

What the Jury Deserved.

Sir Matthew Begbie, chief justice of British Columbia, once had before him a man charged with having killed another man with a sandbag. The evidence was conclusive, and the judge charged the jury accordingly, but a verdict of "Not guilty" was promptly brought in. The judge was astonished. "Gentlemen of the jury," he said, "this is your verdict, not mine. On your conscience the disgrace will rest. Many repetitions of such conduct as yours will make trial by jury a horrible farce and the city of Victoria a nest of crime. Go! I have nothing more to say to you." And then, turning to the prisoner: "You are discharged. Go and sandbag some of those jurymen. They deserve it."

The Law of Falling Bodies.

All falling bodies, whether they be crystal raindrops or meteorites, fall with what philosophers term "a uniform accelerated motion"—in other words, if a body be moving at a certain velocity at the expiration of one second from the beginning of its fall it will be moving with twice that velocity at the expiration of two seconds, gaining in speed at a uniform rate throughout the course of its fall.

Strength of the Condor.

The enormous strength of the condor is equaled by his voracity and boldness. This immense bird often pounces upon small animals, but from the shape and bluntness of his claws he is unable to carry anything very heavy, so he contents himself with fixing it against the ground with one of his claws, while with the other and his powerful beak he rends it to pieces. Gorged with food, the bird then becomes incapable of flight and may be approached, but any attempt at capture is furiously resisted. An American traveler in the Andes encountered a large condor just after it had finished a hearty banquet on a young sheep and foolishly attempted to seize the bird, with the result that he received a gash from its claw. Then he called up his two guides, and the three men maneuvered to take the bird alive. But every attempt was frustrated, and in the end one of the men killed it by a blow with a hatchet.

Some Indian Chiefs.

Spotted Tail was a strong character, a wise and really great chief. He would have been a statesman, diplomatist or able governor if he had been a white man.

Crazy Horse was the incarnation of ferocity—a fierce, restless warrior, who had made a great reputation as a successful leader of raids and war parties and had become at the age of twenty-six the recognized leader of the Ogallallas, the most warlike tribe of the Sioux nation.

Sitting Bull of the Uncapapas * * * was the embodiment of everything hostile to civilization, a perfect type of the savage Indian, a natural born leader of men, cunning and courageous.

Chief Joseph was the highest type of the Indian I have ever known, very handsome, kind and brave. He was quite an orator and the idol of his tribe.—General Miles in "Serving the Republic."

New York City's Seal.

A man who has done research and writing in New York city history explained the other day the significance of the two barrels on the seal of the city. Of the four spaces cut off by four windmill blades, set at right angles to each other, two beavers occupy the upper and lower, while a barrel is in each of the spaces to the right and the left.

"I can understand the meaning of the windmill arms and of the beavers, but why should the city of New York be represented by a couple of beer barrels?" some one asked.

The barrels are not beer, but flour barrels. In early colonial times under the English New York got the exclusive right to bolt flour, which brought the town such prosperity that the flour barrel was naturally an appropriate selection for the city seal.—New York Sun.

Don't Miss This.

If a woman has one daughter, who goes away, the Mrs. misses the Miss and the Miss misses the Mrs. If she has two daughters and both are away the Mrs. misses the Misses and the Misses miss the Mrs. If she has three daughters and two are at one place and one at another the Mrs. misses the Miss and the Misses, and the Miss misses the Mrs. and the Misses. If it is four daughters she has and two are at one place, while the other two are away from home and separated, the Mrs. misses the Miss and the Misses and the Miss, and the Miss and the Misses miss the Misses and the Mrs., while the Misses miss the Mrs., and the Miss misses the Miss and the Misses and the Mrs. So they would all better remain at home with the Mr. of the Mrs.—Judge.

When Hats Were Taxed.

Hat taxes were always more effective with regard to men's headgear than with women's. Queen Elizabeth taxed the blocked beaver out of existence, and Pitt's hat tax of 1784 brought a substantial revenue. Stamps were fixed inside the crown of the hat from threepence to 2 shillings, according to its price, while the penalties for selling unstamped hats ranged from £10 to £20, and the punishment for counterfeiting a hat stamp was death. But an attempt to tax women's French straw hats of the watteau style signally failed. They were smuggled over in large quantities, and before this could be coped with watteau hats went out of fashion, and the tax was a dead letter.—London Chronicle.

Women Street Cleaners.

Many women in Munich support themselves by street sweeping. Most of the recruits of this army come from the country, strapping daughters of small farmers or laborers, and the task is a coveted one to those stout and wholesome young women, so that there is always a waiting list. They dress in a kind of uniform—Tyrolese hat of green, with a feather at one side, blue petticoat, red jacket and a neckerchief.

Infection in the Home.

A German medical journal draws attention to a possible factor in the spread of infectious conditions of the mouth, nose and pharynx that is insufficiently recognized in many households. It points out that common table utensils, such as forks, spoons and glasses, which come into contact with the mouth, are usually washed all together, often with little care, and dried on the same cloth. This gives great opportunity for the distribution of infective agencies. For this reason particular care should be exercised in families where any member may be suffering from an infectious disease to sterilize the table utensils used in boiling water. People who complain of "catching cold" in many instances are merely catching infection from little understood and easily preventable sources. The infectious germ is so minute that the eye does not detect its presence. It is necessary, therefore, to keep up a constant effort for the destruction of hurtful germs and germ carriers by introducing as far as possible the precautionary practices of sanitary science into domestic use. —Philadelphia Record.

Juggling a Photograph.

"We're sometimes asked to do queer stunts with our pictures," said a New York photographer. "About the most unusual was a trick I had to play with a photograph taken of a large gathering of some organization. The committee in charge of the affair wanted one prominent man to take a conspicuous place in the group and so arranged the group. At the last minute a less desirable member of the organization crowded in and got the choice position, making him the most prominent person in the finished photograph. In desperation the committee came to me to help it out. When I suggested changing heads and putting the head of a prominent member on to the body of the undesirable one it was delighted. Fortunately it was a seated group, and the man's figure didn't make much difference either way. The exchange of heads was a great success, and the committee got a lot of praise for the way it had me juggle with that photograph."—New York Sun.

Beethoven's Spider Friend.

When studying the violin as a boy of eight it was Beethoven's custom to shut himself up alone in a little room because it was inhabited by a spider which loved his music so much that when the boy played it left its web and came near to listen and at last climbed upon the arm with which he was holding the bow. The young musician became really fond of the spider. But one day his aunt entered the room while he was playing, saw the spider walking along her nephew's arm and instantly knocked it off with a slipper and crushed it. Young Beethoven wept over his dead friend and refused to play his violin any more. It was only after a lapse of three weeks, and in another room, that he resumed his studies, and his first thought was to compose a plaintive melody to which he gave the title, "Elegy to My Friend Spider."

Strength of an Indian Beetle.

One day a native servant brought me a longicorn beetle which he was carrying by its feelers, while the beetle was carrying a stone weighing nearly half a pound. But how the feelers could stand the strain (the beetle was carried in this fashion for about forty yards) and how the legs could retain their hold of a heavy stone which they could not encompass I cannot conceive. The length of the beetle was 2¼ inches, its feelers 3 inches, and it weighed one-quarter ounce only, while the stone weighed 7¼ ounces, measured 3¼ by 2½ inches and was 7 inches in circumference.—Serampore (Bengal) Letter.

Lincoln's Passes.

Lincoln's humor often got him out of trying situations and tempered his refusal of favors, as happened during the civil war when a gentleman asked him for a pass through the federal lines to Richmond. "I should be happy to oblige you," said Lincoln, "if my passes were respected. But the fact is within the last two years I have given passes to Richmond to a quarter of a million men, and not one has got there yet."

"She did once, but I got my mother to come on a visit at the same time."

Revenge is a kind of wild justice which the more man's nature runs to the more ought law to weed it out.—Bacon.

Shooting With a Revolver.

Very few people, even accomplished shots, know how a revolver ought to be handled.

Troops are taught in aiming never to look at the weapon at all, but to keep their eyes on the object to be struck. In quick firing, and especially in shooting from horseback, much better results are obtainable in this way.

A man throwing a stone does not look at his hand; neither does a billiard player sight along his cue. The same rules apply to the use of short weapons. Men have been trained to shoot excellently at a mark when they could not see their pistol sights at all.

Pieces of pasteboard were fastened just in front of the cylinders, which effectually prevented the men from using their foresights and greatly increased the rapidity of their fire.

Nearly any one can sight a pistol correctly, the inaccuracy of the aim being due to the trembling of the hands before the trigger is pressed. By hiding the sight the temptation to hold too long is removed and the first aim, generally the most accurate, is preserved.—Pearson's.

Oldest City of the New World.

Much of romance attaches to South America, growing out of the history of its ancient inhabitants and the story of the invasion of white men. In both respects Peru is richer than any other part of the continent. It was here that the Inca dynasty, founded by Manco Capac, son of the sun, had its seat, and here was the stage upon which moved the theatrical figure of Pizarro, greatest of the conquistadores. Not even Montezuma's capital can boast the antiquity of Cuzco. It is the oldest city in the new world and was ancient when the Spaniards looted its temples. A narrow strip of sandy coast stretches for 1,000 miles between Ecuador and Chile. At the back of it rises abruptly the purple wall of the Andes, capped by a cheval de frise of snowy peaks which seem to pierce the very skies. But at the greatest heights are massive ruins, which indicate that once in the long forgotten past cities existed in this inhospitable region, where storms of wind, rain and hail are of constant occurrence.

Tungsten and Its Uses.

The mineral tungsten (the name meaning heavy stone) has been known for many years, but only comparatively recently has it become of economic importance. Its most important use, according to the United States geological survey, and the one which makes tungsten mining on an extensive scale possible is an alloy for tool steel. Lathes using tools made from tungsten steel may be speeded up until the chips leaving the tool are so hot that they turn blue, an operation which would ruin the temper of high carbon steel. It is stated that about five times as much can be done with lathes built for such speed and work as can be done by the same lathes with carbon steel tools. From 16 to 20 per cent of tungsten is ordinarily used in lathe tools. The melting point of tungsten is exceedingly high—5,576 degrees F. Tungsten also has an important use in making incandescent electric lamps, crucibles for electric furnaces and various other articles.

Sightless Snails.

A patient investigator in Europe named Yung claims that the snail doesn't see at all. He has made 2,400 experiments upon 176 specimens, and he says that when you put snails into an inclosure where there are both light and shade their distribution is a matter of chance. The snail, he says, does not shun the light so much as he hunts for seclusion. His conclusion is that the snail does not perceive obstacles in his path until he bumps into them. His speed being low, he escapes injury. Having once selected a resting place, flashing lights into his apology for a face does not disturb him. To complete his experiments Mr. Yung amputated the organs of sight from several snails and couldn't find that it made any difference in their happy if placid lives.

A Bird Much Like a Fish.

The "birds of a feather" that "flock together" do not belong to the penguin family, as they are entirely destitute of feathers, having for a covering a kind of stiff down. Another penguin peculiarity is that it swims not on, but under, water, never keeping more than its head out, and when fishing coming to the surface at such brief and rare intervals that an ordinary observer would almost certainly mistake it for a fish.

The Penknife.

Everybody knows that a penknife is no longer a penknife. In the days of the squeaky quill pen, before the introduction of steel pen points, the penknife was used for the purpose of trimming the quill and keeping it in good writing order. It was made with a folding blade, so that it could be carried around in the pocket where it would be easily found whenever needed.

Picture Stories.

"What do you ask for this sketch?" said Sir Joshua Reynolds to a picture dealer whose portfolio he was examining. "Twenty guineas, Sir Joshua." "Twenty pence, I suppose you mean." "No, sir; I would have taken 20 pence for it this morning, but if you think the drawing worth looking at all the world will think it worth buying."

A London dealer who had made a few trifling purchases at a second-hand furniture shop in the country was leaving it when he caught his foot in the string of a picture and fell. Having picked himself up, he examined the picture to see if it had been damaged. It had escaped injury, and he found, to his surprise, that in this tripping he had—literally—stumbled upon a print of the Duchess of Rutland, after Reynolds, by Valentine Green, in its first state. The dealer bought the print for £4 and afterward disposed of it for £1,000.—From Jerningham's "Bargain Book."

A Sympathetic Burglar.

"I woke up suddenly the other night and thought I heard a burglar in the room. I sat up in bed, and that awoke my wife."

"What did she do?"

"She accused me, as usual, of having a burglar; said I'd never hear a real burglar if I lived a thousand years. I said I'd bet I would. She said she'd bet I wouldn't. And just then a shadowy form rose from behind the dresser, and a hoarse voice exclaimed, 'He wins, ma'am!'"

"Did you catch him?"

"Catch him! I didn't try. I just lay there and laughed and heard him slam the door and run down the street. And, say, my wife was so mad she didn't speak to me for a whole day. But I'll bet one thing."

"What is it?"

"I'll bet that burglar was a married man."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Labrador's Short Summer.

"How brief is the summer on the highlands of Labrador!" says Seszketh Pritchard in the Wide World Magazine. "Snow does not melt till July; then with a rush midsummer comes. Grasses and leaves grow almost visibly, the wild cotton soon flings out its little white pennons, millions of berries ripen on the ground, the loon cries, the ptarmigan calls, and you may even see a butterfly balancing in the warm wind. But then also wakens the countless army of hunchbacks, lean and gray mosquitoes, piping blithely for blood. So summer reigns. Then suddenly one day, at the end of August, after the sun has sunk behind the barren crags through the balmy warmth of evening, one may wake up to find everything transfigured and the first snow of another season already falling."

The Emperor's Bell.

One of the biggest bells in the world is in Cologne cathedral and is known as the "Gloriosa." It was cast from twenty-two French cannon captured in the Franco-Prussian war and was presented to the cathedral by the kaiser. It bears the German arms and two inscriptions. One, in Latin, expresses the emperor's gratitude for the divine mercy in granting him victory. The other, in German, declares: "I am the emperor's bell, and I proclaim his glory. I fill a sacred post, and I pray heaven to grant peace and prosperity to the German empire."

Wanted to Patent a Circus.

P. T. Barnum once came to the office to know if he could patent the three ring circus. In technical parlance his three ring circus was an aggregation and not a combination to produce a new result. Therefore it was not patentable, which information highly incensed the showman. "It will be adopted by every circus just as soon as I make it known," he declared. And it was.—Scientific American.

GLENDALE, CAL., MARCH 8, 1912

The supreme court has very wisely decided that the people of a state have a right to the "initiative" if they want it.

We have received a copy of the Hermosa Beach News, a four-page weekly just come into existence at that pleasant resort. Good luck to our latest contemporary.

Candidate Roosevelt is said to have secured Dr. Cooks, press agent, for his own. Now we may learn how the colonel "discovered" some of the things which he thinks he knows.

Mayor J. Stitt Wilson, the socialist head of the municipality of Berkeley, has to face a recall. He is charged with "seeking only his personal aggrandizement." If they catch a professional reformer who seeks much of anything else, they ought to hold fast to him.

The Prohibitionists not having polled three per cent of the total vote at the last state election, do not get a place on the ticket, for the next one. This is what comes of scattering one's ammunition. There were so many other "vital" issues in the last campaign that King Alcohol got overlooked in the fracas.

The NEWS believes that City Trustees Watson and Lane, being hard-working, honest and capable officials should be re-elected and that the people on the west side of town should have a representative on the board. If Mr. Howard is satisfactory to them he ought to be so to the people in other portions of the city.

The rain that has fallen upon Southern California this week shows that Providence still smiles upon these shores that slope toward the setting sun. There is still time for other rains to succeed this bountiful downpour and to make the season one of great prosperity in the way of crops. There will be a comparatively small acreage in hay and grain, but for all other crops the outlook is excellent. The beneficent effect will be felt in all lines of business and the spirit of thankfulness will be widespread.

Henry L. Stimson, appointed to the position of secretary of war under the present administration on the recommendation of Theodore Roosevelt and still declaring himself the latter's friend, says: "I am for Taft because I believe he has faithfully carried out the progressive faith of the Republican party; that his administration stands for orderly, permanent progress in our national government, and that to refuse him the nomination on the assertions that have been made against him would be a blow to that progress and would be a premium upon hasty and unfounded criticism."

COMMON SENSE AND THE TARIFF.

In an interview given to the Outlook President Taft has stated very plainly his ideas in regard to the tariff. The article is entitled "Common Sense versus Haphazard Methods." He recommends the establishment of machinery similar to his tariff board, to ascertain the data of cost, but to be a continuous body, securing all possible information in regard to the subject which will be available by our legislators at all times. With such information available then the tariff should be made "by fixing the rates at figures not dictated by domestic producers for their own enrichment, and granted in exchange for party support, but based of the difference between the cost of production here and the cost of production abroad, ascertained by means which preclude all doubt of the substantial accuracy of the calculation."

Under President Taft's administration a start has been made at fixing the tariff by this common sense method, the wisdom of which ought to appeal to any one who has any desire to see a subject which has been made the football of politics ever since our government was formed, worked out in a sane and reasonable method.

The president has dealt with this matter in a statesmanlike manner, it remains to be seen whether congress and the people behind it, prefer to support the administration in this matter or to have the question still kept in the political arena to be tossed hither and thither by opposing partisans and the "big interests" and schedules to be used for convenient trading among politicians of all classes and parties. If this recommendation of President Taft is adopted by congress, it will be a triumph of real statesmanship, but that fact is the one that threatens to defeat it.

A NEGLECTED ORDINANCE.

The city of Glendale seems to have mislaid one of its valuable ordinances, or perhaps it is because the ladies who were instrumental in having it assume form and substance, are now devoting themselves to matters of state, that it has fallen into a state of quiesecnce. Anyhow it is being disregarded and we refer to the one regulating the planting of shade trees along our streets. This law was well intended to regulate the planting of shade trees so that there should be something like uniformity in our tree lined streets. It was intended to prevent the haphazard planting of trees which results when every owner of a fifty-foot lot proceeds to plant in his parkway any kind of a tree that he fancies. The result here and in other towns is far from being satisfactory. Many of the recent additions to our home builders are ignorant of the existence of this ordinance and the result is that they proceed to stick in the ground to clatter up the landscape anything in the shape of a tree that their fancy dictates.

On a certain street we noticed recently a large number of palms planted on two sides of a large corner lot Now palms are beautiful beyond doubt but growing along a sidewalk they become a nuisance after attaining a few years' growth, collecting the dust as they do and dispensing it freely over the person of the passer-by who rubs against their "far flung" leaves

The ordinance also prohibits the cutting down or removal of trees without permission of the street superintendent and this feature is also being disregarded. The most important provision is the one requiring the owners of property along a street to get together and select the kind of tree desired so that uniform results may be obtained. The penalty for neglecting to do this is the alternative of permitting the street superintendent to name the variety of tree that may be planted on that section of the sreet. Now that the ground is in good condition for tree planting it is probable that considerable of it will be done in the next two months. Property owners should form small local associations for this particular purpose; select the kind of tree that suits the majority and plant in accordance with a harmonious plan. Better results will be obtained if the care of these trees for the first year at least be given over to some one who will make it his business to care for them. The result of this should be a uniform growth and a stretch of street lined with trees that would be a pleasure for the eye to rest upon.

TAKING CARE OF THE BOYS.

A few of the citizens of Glendale, several ministers among them, are making a commendable effort to provide a place of amusement, a gymnasium or something similar for the boys of 16 or under who either have no homes here or do not find them attractive enough in which to spend their evenings. It is a movement that should meet with hearty and general support. In every town of any considerable size are found boys who lack the comforts of home and who when the day's work is done find time hanging heavily on their hands. Many of this class have homes, but the unwisdom of parents in some cases and various circumstances in others have failed to make them the places where youth finds natural and wholesome recreation. Until the matter of educating youth became so highly systematized as it is in this generation, a boy in attendance at the public school had lessons to study in the evening, but the refinements of our educational plan have robbed him of that useful demand upon his time at home and there are evening hours unprovided for. In a suburban town such as this there is always the temptation present to jump on the car and "spend the evening in the city." To do this frequently is beyond the means of the average boy even if he be a wage earner, but this fact frequently fails to deter him from the alluring prospect. The result in the most harmless cases is a waste of his money, but that is very rarely the least of the evil resulting from his search after pleasure. A boy who indulges in this habit regularly for any considerable time is handicapping himself seriously in the race of life, for if he acquire no habits that are positively evil, he will at least get a wrong viewpoint from which to look at the more or less serious business of living. The boy therefore should be given a chance, he should have at least two things to choose from and one of the things should at least be harmless. But the fact should be borne in mind that boys are of various complexions and kinds and plans for his welfare should not be too circumscribed. It is a deep question, where shall we stop doing for the boy and leave him to himself? In the end the gist of the matter seems to be this, give the boy every chance, help him to form good habits and to have right desires, but impress upon him when you can the supreme idea of self-reliance, do not encourage him in the belief that when he comes to grief, the fault is anothers rather than his own. There is no better object in life than to help the children of today who will be the men and women of tomorrow.

THE RAIN.

The storm which came in Sunday still continues as we go to press, in the form of occasional showers. The gauge of Mr. Bartlett on Brand boulevard recorded 2.90 inches up to noon Wednesday. For the same period an approximate measurement gave a full four inches on Verdugo road a mile distant. This latter measurement is nearer that recorded at Pasadena and shows the fall of water to vary greatly in localities not far separated.

DARING ROBBERY.

A very daring thing in the way of a robbery occurred last Saturday night when the home of Mrs. Barnes on Arden avenue, Casa Verdugo, was entered by a light fingered fellow, $56 two bank books, and some very important papers being taken from Mrs Barnes' purse while the family was at dinner. It seems that when Mrs Barnes came home from Los Angeles she laid her purse on a dressing table in her boudoir. After dinner she went back to her room and found the window screen open and her purse gone Below the window she found foot prints, but so far no trace of the thief has been found.

A GLENDALE BOY AFLOAT.

The NEWS has received a letter from Charley Shropshire, U. S. S. South Dakota, from which we make the following extracts:

We left San Francisco at five o'clock on the twenty-first of November. The sun was just rising when we passed out through the Golden Gate with our ship headed west.

Eight days out of the Gate we sighted the island of Molakia. This is the leper island of which we have all heard and read so much. By the help of glasses we got a very close view of the little town which is on the west side of the island. That afternoon we sighted Honolulu, which is on the Isladn of Oahu. The town looked very inviting to us as it nestled in the tropics surrounding it and the high mountains directly back of it made a fine background. The next day was thanksgiving so, of course, that day had to be celebrated with a big turkey dinner, which is so dear to the heart of a sailor. Plenty of liberty was given us at Honolulu and I think I am safe in saying that everyone enjoyed himself. Among the interesting things to be seen here is: Diamond Head, the Punch Bowl, the Aquarium, Waikiki Beach and the Hula Hula dancers.

On the 18th of December the ship raised anchor and sailed for Hilo, which is on the island of Hawaii. This is the largest island in the group and is two hundred miles from Honolulu. Here the opportunity was given us to go to the volcano of Kilaeau. This was gladly taken advantage of by many of us and so we made up a party of two hundred men who wanted to go and who had the necessary number of simoleons. We started the next morning from Hilo on a little dinky train for the volcano. This took us about half way up and from there to the crater we had to engage horses to take us the rest of the way, which is a distance of twenty miles round trip. After much maneuvering around we finally reached the volcano. The red hot lava in the pit of Kileau was about the greatest sight any of us had ever seen. The crater is about fifteen hundred feet across and it was shooting up masses of red hot lava a couple of hundred feet into the air. When you come to think that all of this mass is rocks and stone in melted liquid one begins to realize the intense heat it gives off.

We staid here till late that night and then we returned by the way we came. Every one voted the trip a grand success and a sight not soon to be forgotten, as this is something that is seen but once in a lifetime. After a few days more at Hilo the ship returned to Honolulu for the Christmas holidays. We received a mail from the states on the twenty-fifth, and many of the fellows received remembrances from home, which showed that the old folks at home had not forgotten their sailor boys. We had a boat race that afternoon with the California, the prune pickers going down to defeat before our husky oarsmen. The ships were ready to return to the states when we received a wireless message from Washington telling us to stay here for an indefinite period of time. A few days after that we began a cruise about the different islands and we have touched at all of them.

The small towns or villages are very interesting as here you can see the natives in their daily life. The natives are very good looking and have a very intelligent expression. They seem to be satisfied if they have a few feet of soil to cultivate and a straw house to live in. We stopped at a number of places where we made up parties to go back inland and explore the country. These little trips helped a great deal to relieve the monotony of staying in one place for any length of time. We have been laying off Hilo now for a week and are going to return to Honolulu on the twenty-first of the month. C. T. SHROPSHIRE,
Bugler United States Navy.

Mrs. J. T. Bunn of Doran street will leave Glendale in the near future for an extended trip in the Southern states.

THE MISSION PLAY.

California's Romantic Beginnings Dramatized in Wonderful Pageant
John S. McGroarty, Poet-Historian of California, Author of American Oberammergau.

With "the days when California began" as his theme, John S. McGroarty, the poet-historian of California, well-known author, and editor of the West Coast Magazine, has written a pageant play that will become as far-famed as the German Oberammergau. It is the Mission Play, and it will be produced for the first time under the shadow of the grey walls of historic San Gabriel Mission in the valley of the same name, not far from Los Angeles, some time in April.

The Mission Play is the first American Pageant Play that has been written on the romantic and historic past—hitherto unattempted by any author, because there is no other section of the country with such romanticism as the basis of the present day development, as is found here by the western sea. For this reason critics of world-wide reputation expect the Mission Play will create a stir such as none other pageant play has ever equalled in America.

Taking the early chapters of California history as his basis, the author has woven into his play all the wondrous song and story of the Golden State. Thoroughly equipped for such a task through years of study of historical documents, and permeated with the poetry of the times when California was young, Mr. McGroarty presents the story of the founding of the California Missions. He tells of their rise to wealth, and power, and of their accomplishments in the conversion of the indigent aboriginal inhabitants of these western shores, and then depicts the decline, and fall of the wonderful chain of religious establishments which marked the Camino Real from San Diego, by the Harbor of the Sun, to Somoma, far to the north of San Francisco and the Golden Gate. The company presenting it will number 300 players.

TUESDAY AFTERNOON CULB.

A treat is in store for the members of the club, Tuesday afternoon, March 12. The literary section in charge of the program has secured Miss Thekla Mertens who will give a dramatic reading, "Rose of the Wind," by Anna Blanch. The club will meet at the Country Club as usual.

The Japanese afternoon under the direction of the philanthropic committee was a decided success. The decorations of Japanese parasols and dainty pink blossoms were beautiful. The committee appearing in Japanese costumes added to the picturesque effect. The program was pleasing and profitable. Mrs. Cutler sang a Japanese love song and Dr. Soper described the everyday life and customs of the Japanese among whom he has lived as a missionary in Japan for over thirty years. The parasol drill given by twelve young ladies in Japanese costume was greatly enjoyed. At the close of the program Japanese refreshments were served. The committee wish to thank the ladies for their hearty co-operation in the work of the committee.

LOS ANGELES THEATRES

GRAND OPERA HOUSE.

"THE GIRL AND THE BOY."
Fourth Week.

With each succeeding performance the demand for seats for "The Girl and the Boy," Walter DeLeon's latest musical comedy success, the current attraction at the Grand Opera house, has grown greater and greater. In fact hundreds of anxious and discerning theater-goers have been turned away from the grand box office unable to secure seats during the past week. It is for this reason that the management of the Grand announces a fourth week of "The Girl and the Boy," starting with the matinee performance Sunday afternoon. Indications now are that the fourth week will be the banner one in point of attendance. The advance sale already is large and capacity business should be the rule at every performance. "The Girl and the Boy" is the most successful production ever made by the Ferris Hartman company and this is the universal opinion of every one who has seen it.

CHAPTER XVIII.

CONTRABAND.

SHELDON did not mention the subject again, nor did his conduct change from what it had always been. There was nothing of the pining lover, nor of the lover at all, in his demeanor. Nor was there any awkwardness between them. They were as frank and friendly in their relations as ever.

The labor situation in Berande was improving. The Martha had carried away fifty of the blacks whose time was up, and they had been among the worst on the plantation—five year men recruited by Johnny Be-blowed, men who had gone through the old days of terrorism when the original owners of Berande had been driven away. The new recruits, being broken in under the new regime, gave better promise. Joan had joined with Sheldon from the start in the program that they must be gripped with a strong hand.

"I think it would be a good idea to put all the gangs at work close to the house this afternoon," she announced one day at breakfast. "I've cleaned up the house, and you ought to clean up the barracks. There is too much stealing going on."

Joan and Sheldon, both armed, went through the barracks, house by house, the boss boys assisting.

A wealth of loot was recovered. There were fully a dozen cane knives, big hacking weapons, with razor edges, capable of decapitating a man at a stroke, but most astonishing was the quantity of ammunition—cartridges for Lee Metfords, for Winchesters and Marlins, for revolvers from 32 caliber to 45, shotgun cartridges, Joan's two boxes of 38 cartridges of prodigious bore for the ancient Sniders of Malaita, flasks of black powder, sticks of dynamite, yards of fuse and boxes of detonators. But the great find was in the house occupied by Gogoomy and five Port Adams recruits. The fact that the boxes yielded nothing excited Sheldon's suspicions, and he gave orders to dig up the earthen floor. Wrapped in matting, well oiled, free from rust, and brand new, two Winchesters were first unearthed. Sheldon did not recognize them. They had not come from Berande; neither had the forty flasks of powder found under the corner post of the house; and, while he could not be sure, he could remember no loss of eight boxes of detonators. The absence of any cartridges made Sheldon persist in the digging up of the floor, and a fifty pound flour tin was his reward. With glowering eyes Gogoomy looked on while Sheldon took from the tin a hundred rounds each for the two Winchesters and fully as many rounds more of nondescript cartridges of all sorts and makes and calibres.

"ME FINISH ALONG YOU, YOU DIE ALTOGETHER."

The contraband and stolen property was piled in assorted heaps on the back veranda of the bungalow. A few paces from the bottom of the steps were grouped the forty odd culprits, while behind them, in solid array, the several hundred blacks of the plantation. At the head of the steps Joan and Sheldon were seated.

"Look at it," Sheldon said to Joan. "We've been sleeping over a volcano. They ought to be whipped"—

"No whip me," Gogoomy cried out from below. "Father belong me big fella chief. Me whip, too much trouble along you, close up, my word."

"What name you fella Gogoomy!" Sheldon shouted. "I knock seven bells out of you. Here, you Kwaque, put 'm irons along that fella Gogoomy."

Kwaque, a strapping gang boss, plucked Gogoomy from out of his following, and helped by the other gang bosses twisted his arms behind him and snapped on the heavy handcuffs.

"Me finish along you, close up, you die altogether," Gogoomy, with wrath distorted face, threatened the boss boy.

"Please, no whipping," Joan said in a low voice. "If whipping is necessary, send them to Tulagi and let the government do it. Give them their choice between a fine or an official whipping."

Sheldon nodded and stood up, facing the blacks.

"Manonmie!" he called.

Manonmie stood forth and waited.

"You fella boy bad fella too much," Sheldon charged. "You steal 'm plenty. Me cross along you too much. S'pose, you like 'm, me take 'm one fella pound along you in big book. S'pose you no like 'm me take 'm one fella pound, then me send you fella along Tulagi catch 'm one strong fella government whipping. Plenty New Georgia boys, plenty Ysabel boys stop along jail along Tulagi. Them fella no like Malaita boys little bit. My word, they give 'm you strong fella whipping. What you say?"

"You take 'm one fella pound along me," was the answer.

And Manonmie, patently relieved, stepped back, while Sheldon entered the fine in the plantation labor journal.

Boy after boy, he called the offenders out and gave them their choice, and boy by boy each one elected to pay the fine imposed.

Gogoomy and his five tribesmen were fined three pounds each, and at Gogoomy's guttural command they refused to pay.

"S'pose you go along Tulagi," Sheldon warned him; "you catch 'm strong fella whipping and you stop along jail three fella year. Savvee?"

Gogoomy wavered.

"You take 'm three fella pound along me," Gogoomy muttered, at the same time scowling his hatred at Sheldon and transferring half the scowl to Joan and Kwaque. "Me finish along you, you catch 'm big fella trouble, my word. Father belong me big fella chief along Fort Adams."

"That will do," Sheldon warned him. "You shut mouth belong you."

"Me no fright," the son of a chief retorted, by his insolence increasing his stature in the eyes of his fellows.

"Lock him up for tonight," Sheldon said to Kwaque. "Sun he come up put 'm that fella and five fella belong him along grass cutting. Savvee?"

"There will be trouble with Gogoomy yet," Sheldon said to Joan, as the boss boys marshalled their gangs and led them away to their work. "Keep an eye on him. Be careful when you are riding alone on the plantation. The loss of those Winchesters and all that ammunition has hit him harder than your cuffing did. He is dead ripe for mischief."

* * * * * * * *

"I wonder what has become of Tudor. It's two months since he disappeared into the bush, and not a word of him after he left Binu."

Joan Lackland was sitting astride her horse by the bank of the Balesuna, where the sweet corn had been planted, and Sheldon was leaning against her horse's shoulder.

"Yes, it is a long time for no news to have trickled down," he answered, watching her keenly from under his hat brim and wondering as to the measure of her anxiety for the adventurous gold hunter. "But Tudor will come out all right. He did a thing at the start that I wouldn't have given him or any other man credit for—persuaded Binu Charley to go along with him. I'll wager no other Binu nigger has ever gone so far into the bush unless to be kai kai'd."

"Look! Look!" Joan cried in a low voice, pointing across the narrow stream to a slack eddy, where a huge crocodile drifted like a log awash. "Ugh! The filthy beasts! I hate them! I hate them!"

"And yet you go diving among sharks," Sheldon chided. "Just the same, I wish I could swim as well as you. Maybe it would beget confidence such as you have."

"Do you know I think it would be nice to be married to a man such as you seem to be becoming," she remarked, with one of her abrupt changes that always astounded him. "I should think you could be trained into a very good husband—you know, not one of the domineering kind, but one who considered his wife was just as much an individual as himself and just as much a free agent. Really, you know, I think you are improving."

She laughed and rode away, leaving him greatly cast down. If he had thought there had been one bit of coyness in her words, one feminine flutter, one womanly attempt at deliberate lure and encouragement he would have been elated. But he knew absolutely that it was the boy and not the woman who had so daringly spoken.

Joan rode through twenty acres of uncleared cane. The grass was waist high and higher, and as she rode along she remembered that Gogoomy was one of a gang of boys that had been detailed to the grass cutting. A little farther on she heard voices and reined in and listened. It was Gogoomy talking.

"Dog he stop 'm along house, night time he walk about," Gogoomy was saying. "You fella boy catch 'm one fella pig, put 'm kai-kai, belong him dog along one big fella fish hook. S'pose dog he walk about catch 'm kai-kai, you fella boy catch 'm dog allee same one shark. Dog he finish close up. Big fella marster sleep along big fella house. White Mary sleep along pickaninny house. One fella Adamu he stop along outside pickaninny house. You fella boy finish 'm dog, finish 'm Adamu, finish 'm big fella marster, finish 'm white Mary, finish 'm altogether. Plenty musket he stop, plenty powder, plenty tomahawk, plenty knife fee. Sun he come up we long way too much."

"Me catch 'm pig sun he go down," spoke up one whose thin falsetto voice Joan recognized as belonging to Cosse, one of Gogoomy's tribesmen.

"Me catch 'm dog," said another.

"And me catch 'm white fella Mary," Gogoomy cried triumphantly. "Me catch 'm Kwaque he die along him quick."

This much Joan heard of the plan to murder, and then her rising wrath proved too much for her discretion. She spurred her horse into the grass, crying:

"What name you fella boy, eh? What name?"

They arose, scrambling and scattering, and to her surprise she saw there were a dozen of them. As she looked in their glowering faces and noted the heavy, two-foot hacking cane knives in their hands, she became suddenly aware of the rashness of her act. If only she had her revolver or a rifle, all would have been well. But she had carelessly ventured out unarmed.

"To much talk along you fella boy," she said severely. "Too much talk, too little work. Savvee?"

Gogoomy made no reply, but, apparently shifting weight, he slid one foot forward. The other boys, spread fanwise about her, were also sliding forward, the cruel cane knives in their hands advertising their intention.

"You cut 'm grass!" she commanded imperatively.

But Gogoomy slid his other foot forward. She measured the distance with her eye. It would be impossible to whirl her horse around and get away. She would be chopped down from behind.

She lifted her riding whip threateningly, and at the same moment drove in both spurs with her heels, rushing the startled horse straight at Gogoomy. He swerved aside to avoid the horse, at the same time swinging his cane knife in a slicing blow that would have cut her in twain. She leaned forward under the flying steel, which cut through her riding skirt, through the edge of the saddle, through the saddle cloth, and even slightly into the horse itself. Her right hand, still raised, came down, the thin whip whishing through the air. She saw the white, crooked mark of the weal clear across the sullen, handsome face, and still what was practically in the same instant she saw another member of the band, overridden, go down before her, and she heard his snarling and grimacing chatter—for all the world like an angry monkey. Then she was free and away, heading the horse at top speed for the house.

Out of her sea training she was able to appreciate Sheldon's executiveness when she burst in on him with her news. Springing from the steamer chair in which he had been lounging while waiting for breakfast, he clapped his hands for the house boys; and, while listening to her, he was buckling on his cartridge belt and running the mechanism of his automatic pistol.

"Ornfiri," he snapped out his orders, "you fella ring big fella bell strong fella plenty. You finish 'm bell, you put 'm saddle on horse. Viaburi, you go quick house belong Seelee he stop, tell 'm plenty black fella run away—ten fella two fella black fella boy." He scribbled a note and handed it to Lalaperu. "Lalaperu, you go quick house belong white fella marster Boucher.

"That will head them back from the coast on both sides," he explained to Joan. "And old Seelee will turn his whole village loose on their track as well."

In response to the summons of the big bell Joan's Tahitians were the first to arrive, by their glistening bodies and panting chests showing that they had run all the way.

Sheldon proceeded to arm Joan's sailors and deal out ammunition and handcuffs. Adamu Adam, with loaded rifle, he placed on guard over the whaleboats. Noa Noah, aided by Matapuu, was instructed to take charge of the working gangs as fast as they came in, to keep them amused, and to guard against their being stampeded into making a break for themselves. The five other Tahitians were to follow Joan and Sheldon on foot.

"I'm glad we unearthed that arsenal the other day," Sheldon remarked as they rode out of the compound gate.

A hundred yards away they encountered one of the clearing gangs coming in. It was Kwaque's gang, but Sheldon looked in vain for him.

"What name that fella Kwaque he no stop along you?" he demanded.

"Here, you fella Babatani, you talk 'm mouth belong you."

Babatani stepped forward in all the pride of one singled out from among his fellows.

"Gogoomy he finish along Kwaque altogether," was Babatani's explanation. "He take 'm head b'long him run like h—."

In brief words and with paucity of imagination he described the murder, and Sheldon and Joan rode on.

A mile farther on, where the runaways' trail led straight toward the bush, they encountered the body of Kwaque. The head had been hacked off and was missing, and Sheldon took it on faith that the body was Kwaque's. He had evidently put up a fight, for a bloody trail led away from the body.

"I understand that Mr. Pincupenny has been operated on for appendicitis," remarked Miss Cayenne.

"Yes. It's the first time any one was known to get anything out of him."

"And even then they had to give him chloroform to get that."

The Strange Part.

Hardup—You see this half dollar?

"Yes. Why? Is there anything extraordinary about it?"

Hardup—Rather! It's mine!

Both Sides.

THIS IS THE NEWSPAPER AGE

THE invention of movable types occurred a trifle less than 500 years ago. These 500 years have witnessed infinitely greater progress than the world had made in all the thousands of years previous. Printing has been the most considerable factor in this progress.

THE NEWSPAPER OF TODAY REACHES MORE PEOPLE AND INFLUENCES MORE PEOPLE THAN ANY OTHER FORM OF THE PRINTED PAGE.

It covers the fields devoted to all other kinds of printing. They are special. IT IS UNIVERSAL.

This is the newspaper age. The press is the most potent factor in modern civilization. All the other factors have existed before in some form. Only the press is new. At its advent began the modern era.

THE MAN WITHOUT A NEWSPAPER IS A CITIZEN OF THE MIDDLE AGES SET DOWN IN THE TWENTIETH CENTURY.

He is as much out of date as the dodo, as much out of place as a bat in the sunlight, as much outclassed as a Roman galley by a modern ocean liner, as sure to be outdistanced as the locomotive is to outdistance the ox cart.

That the grantee of said franchise, his, its or their successors or assigns, shall have the right to construct and maintain such traps and manholes as may be necessary to afford proper access to said pipes and pipe lines for cleaning and maintaining the same, and said traps and manholes shall at all times be kept flush with the surface of the highway and so located as to conform to any order of the Board of Trustees in regard thereto, and not to interfere with the use of the highway for travel. The grantee of said franchise, his, its or their successors or assigns, shall have the right, subject to such regulations as are now or may hereafter be in force, to make all necessary excavations in said highways for the construction and repair of said pipe lines, traps and manholes.

That the pipes to be laid and maintained under said franchise shall be of steel, of good workmanship and of an internal diameter of not less than eight (8) nor more than ten (10) inches.

That all pipes shall be laid not less than two feet underground, and, unless the Board of Trustees shall otherwise direct, shall be laid along the west side of the highways and shall be within fifteen feet from the property line in all highways sixty feet or less in width, and within five feet of the curb line in all other streets, and shall not be nearer than three feet to the macadamized portion of all macadamized roads; and where it is necessary to lay said line through the border of any macadamized road, the same shall be restored to its original condition; and in the event it is necessary to cross any portion of a macadamized road, the same shall be done by a tunnel or bore, so as not to disturb the foundation of such macadamized road, and in the event the same cannot thus be done, the said crossing shall be made under a special permit to be granted by the Board of Trustees upon application therefor, said application to be accompanied with a drawing, specifications and explanations, showing the necessity for the same. That any damage or injury suffered by any person by reason of any excavation being improperly guarded during said work shall be borne by the grantee of said franchise, his or its successors or assigns.

That said city reserves the right to change the grade of any highway or portion thereof over which said franchise shall be granted, and the grantee or assigns, shall at once change the location of all pipes and other appliances laid under said franchise so as to conform to such change of grade. That if any portion of any of said highways shall be damaged by reason of leaks in any pipe laid under said franchise, the grantee of such franchise, his or its successors or assigns shall, at his, its or their own expense repair any such damage and put said highway in as good condition as before such leak, to the satisfaction of the Board of Trustees of said city.

That if the grantee of said franchise, his or its successors or assigns, shall fail to comply with any of the instructions of said Board of Trustees with respect to the location of any portion of said system of pipes and pipe-lines, or the repair of any damage to highways, within ten days after the service of written notice upon said grantee, his or its successors or assigns, requiring compliance therewith, then said Board of Trustees may immediately do whatever work is necessary to carry out said instructions, at the cost and expense of said grantee, his or its successors or assigns, which costs, by the acceptance of said franchise, said grantee, his or its successors or assigns, agree to pay upon demand.

That the work of constructing and laying said system of pipes and pipelines shall be commenced in good faith within not more than four months from the granting of the said franchise, and shall be continuously prosecuted thereafter in good faith and without unnecessary or avoidable intermission or delay. That within six months from taking effect of this ordinance a sum of not less than $50,000.00 shall be expended upon such pipe-lines. That such work of construction shall be completed within not more than three years from and after the date of granting the franchise. That if said work be not so commenced, prosecuted and completed within the times and in the manner specified, said franchise shall be forfeited.

That the said grantee and his or its successors or assigns shall, during the life of said franchise, pay to the said city, in lawful money of the United States, two per cent of the gross annual receipts of such grantee and his or its successors or assigns arising from the use, operation or possession of said franchise. That any neglect, failure or refusal to comply with any of the condition of said franchise shall thereupon immediately ipso facto effect a forfeiture thereof, and the said city by it. Board of Trustees may thereupon declare said franchise forfeited, and may exclude said grantee or his or its successors or assigns from further use of the highways of said city under said franchise; and said grantee and his or its successors or assigns shall thereupon and immediately surrender all rights in and to the same, and said franchise shall be deemed and shall remain null, void and of no effect.

TROPICO

Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Pratt of Glendale avenue will entertain for several months, Mrs. Pratt's sister, Mrs. M. J Crawford of Sublett, Illinois.

Sixteen candidates were initiated into the Fraternal Brotherhood lodge of this place at a recent meeting. Guess that's going some for a little burg.

George Roper, who for the past several months has been working in the mines in Arizona, arrived in Tropico this week, and will pass some time here.

Marshal Fishback was kept busy during the storm on Monday and Tuesday keeping the gutters clear and taking care of the property of the Tropico residents in general.

Dr. and Mrs. Emil Tholen are entertaining Mr. holen's brother, Gergard Tholen of Port Washington, Wis., for several days, at their home corner Brand boulevard and Tenth streets.

The Vizor Lodge No. 293 initiated five candidates into the order Monday night at their hall in the Gabaig block One afternoon recently the Pythian Sisters order was organized and will hold regular meetings in the hall.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Whitney of Los Angeles, and Mrs. Hate of Aberdine, Wash., were guests over Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. N. Lunn at their beautiful home on Glendale avenue.

Miss Bernice Snively, a teacher in the grammar schools in Oxnard, will arrive in Tropico today to enjoy a visit of several days with Miss Blanche Davenport at her home on Glendale avenue.

On Friday evening of next week the Baraca and Philathea classes of the Presbyterian Sunday school will hold party in the parlors of the church This will be the monthly social event enjoyed by the members of these classes.

Residents of this valley will doubtless be glad to know that a thriving, shouting young gentleman has arrived to enlarge the family circle of Mr. and Mrs. S. Jay Rice, formerly of this place. Mother and son are doing nicely at the home of Mr. Rice's parents.

The trustees have appointed Jonas W. Gould, more commonly known as "Bill," as night watchman for this city. It is understood that the merchants of this city are helping in a financial way to make it possible to retain some one in this much-needed office.

Next Wednesday evening a masquerade dance will be given in Knights of Pythias hall by the Royal Court lodge of this place. This is the first dance of this nature given in this new hall and the affair promises to be well attended.

An enjoyable social dancing party was given in the Knights of Pythias hall Thursday evening. On account of the threatening weather the attendance was not large but this did not detract in the least from the pleasure of the occasion. The affair was given by the K. of P. lodge.

F. E. Fitzpatrick of San Francisco has made application with the Tropico board of trustees for a franchise to run a pipe line along the San Fernando road from the north to the south limits of the city. A number of attorneys were present and urged the board to take immediate action in the matter.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Lee, who for the past several months have been residing in their home on Tropico avenue east of Central avenue, have sold their place and have rented the house owned by George Ballentyne on Glendale avenue. They moved into their new home this week.

On Thursday evening of next week the teachers and officers of the Presbyterion Sunday school will give a reception to the Baraca and Philathea classes of that school, the affair to take place in the parlors of the church. The reception will be in the form of an Irish party, every one attending being expected to bring with them an Irish poem.

What promises to be one of the leading social events in this city this week is the box social which will be given in the K. of P. hall this evening. Each lady attending is expected to take a box filled with lunch for two and the gentlemen are expected to buy the boxes at auction. The affair will be given by the Fraternal Brotherhood lodge.

Harold Story, editor of the Bulletin of the Presbyterian church, and correspondent for the Baraca class of that church to the different valley papers, has, on account of his parents moving to Whittier, where they have secured a drug business, resigned as holder of these offices. Mr. Story will, however, continue his school work at Glendale union high school until the end of the present school term.

A pleasant affair this week was the surprise party tendered to Mrs. F. E. Peters Monday evening at her pretty home on Glendale avenue by a number of her most intimate friends. The affair was planned and given in honor of Mrs. Peters' birthday anniversary, which occurred at that time. The evening was enjoyably spent in games and music and at quite a late hour refreshments, which were taken by the surprisers, were served. The guests numbered about fourteen.

A GET-TOGETHER TICKET FOR TROPICO.

Carnes, pastor of the church, will deliver the evening discourse, taking for his subject "The Right Human Life is Its Own Reward."

The Foreign Missionary Society of the church will be entertained by Mrs Latter at her home on Boynton street next Thursday afternoon.

The Ladies' Aid Society held an all day meeting in the church, Tuesday. Luncheon was served at noon. The time was spent in sewing.

A reception will be given by the officers, teachers and old scholars of the Sunday school to the new scholars in the church Friday evening.

WEST GLENDALE

On Monday evening, February 26 at the home of the bride, corner Remington and Burchette streets, Miss Annice Freeman and Ellery Pollock were united in marriage. Rev. Greene of Burbank performed the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Pollock will reside at Burbank where Mr. Pollock owns a ranch.

More pupils continue to come into the West Glendale school. The register now shows something over 300 This certainly goes to show that the district is rapidly growing.

Mr. Adams of Pacific avenue, who has been quite ill with pneumonia, is much improved and able to sit up.

The grain men who are preparing to take their stock to Inyo county for pasture have changed their minds and are going to keep on patronizing home-grown feed, of which there will be a plenty since old Jupiter Pluvius has opened up his heart and consented to send down "showers of blessing."

The contract for furnishing the steel lockers and seats for the auditorium of the Third street school was awarded to C. F. Webber Co., Los Angeles.

W. C. T. U. NOTES.

The annual (all-day) meeting held at the president's home, March 1st, was well attended, 25 present. Election of officers: President, Mrs. Hattie E. Gaylord, 134 E. First street; recording secretary, Mrs. W. E. Hartley, Verdugo road; correspondence secretary, Miss Olive Marsh, 116 E. First street; treasurer, Mrs. Kate L. Evans, Piedmont Park. Four new members received.

Mrs. Catherine Pierce Wheat, president of the Los Angeles Federation of Woman's Christian Temperance Unions and state superintendent of physical education, held the close attention of her audience when she talked on "The House Beautiful, the Body," giving such a clear, vivid picture lesson of how women are ruining their health and good looks by eating improper food, dressing immodestly, and uncomfortably, binding the vital orags with corsets which God never intended woman to wear, and which she abandoned years ago, and consequently is a beautiful figure using her own backbone to hold her body in a straight position. Many of the ills of the life of women are traced directly or indirectly to this more than barbaric fashion. The growing organs of young girls are crowded out of shape, lapping one organ over the other by their use, causing invalidism of many whom men have to care for in later life.

A crusade against their use ought to be started, is your president's desire, for these sentiments have always been mine also.

Our meeting will be held March 15, 2:00 p. m. to 4:30 p. m., with Mrs. Meeker, East Sixth street. Tea will be served and silver collection taken. Do not forget the date, and come.

Temperance sentiment is gaining ground in the United States. California has, by county ordinance, six totally "dry" counties, five more are "dry" with the exception of one "wet" municipality in each. Three are "dry" by precinct option with the exception of nine "wet" precincts, while yet five more have a total of 101 "dry" precincts. Seven cities, with over 10,000 inhabitants and 17 towns with a population of 1000 or more, have banished the bar. There are no license municipalities scattered throughout the state. The women of California have now the franchise and this in itself ensures a "dry" state in the near future.

Colorado—So much of this state is now "dry" that a prohibition amendment to the constitution will be voted on by the people in 1912. The women's vote will tell for prohibition.

Connecticut—Twothirds of the territory and two-fifths of the population are under prohibition.

Delaware—Two of the three counties, comprising three-fourths of the area of the state, have prohibition. About 800,000 people live in no-license territory.

District of Columbia has a population of 330,000, and of this number 54,500 live in territory protected from the rum traffic, which includes the capital, the National Soldiers' Home and its environments in a radius of one mile, the grounds of the asylum for the insane, the almshouse, and the area between the two last named, as well as within a radius of one-half mile of said properties.

Florida—Thirty-five of the forty-seven counties are "dry." The only places in the state where liquor can legally be sold are eighteen cities.

Georgia—Statutory prohibition came into effect on Jan. 1, 1908. It must be borne in mind that statutory prohibition and a prohibition amendment to the state constitution are distinctly two things. The legislature has the power to displace statutory prohibition by some other law, but a constitutional amendment cannot be amended without a majority vote of the people themselves.

Idaho—Eighty per cent of the population is now under local option. It is conceded that this is largely the result of the women's vote. The majority of the members elected to the 1911 legislature are favorable to submitting to the people a constitutional prohibitory amendment.

Illinois—Over 2,000,000 of Illinois population live in no-license territory. About one-half the area and one-fourth of the population of Chicago are included in this summary.

To be continued next week.

MRS. HATTIE E. GAYLORD, President.

Preparations have just been completed in Los Angeles for the first annual celebration of the "Rodeo," the most monumental and spectacular outdoor Western extravaganza ever staged in Southern California. Cowpunchers and cowgirls from every section of the ranch country between the Canadian border and the Rio Grande are already camped on the "Lucky Baldwin Rancho, Santa Anita, preparing to compete in the great South western interstate cowboy champion ship contests. The stupendous events will be held from March 9 to 17, on the Baldwin Ranch.

"The Rodeo," translated from the Spanish, means "the round-up." It is to be an unrehearsed series of contests in hazardous horsemanship, roping, pony express riding, and all other branches of the cowboy and cowgirl's work and play. Differenciating from the traveling Wild West show or circus, in that it is an open competition for championships, the Rodeo has attracted entrants who would not appear as professional actors and actresses. Many of the ranchers are wealthy. To them the Rodeo is what the Olympic games were to old Greece, what the Durbar sports at Delhi are to the horsemen of the Far East.

The management extends an invitation to every horseman and horsewoman, offering them free admission to the grounds, free horse feed and stable.

Special train service and special low rates have been provided by the railroads from all points west of Salt Lake City and Albuquerque, and special cars will be run from Los Angeles. The program will start each day at 2 o'clock, lasting until 4:15 giving everyone ample time to return to their homes or hotel before dark. The admission prices range form fifty cents to two dollars—the boxes—and every admission includes a comfortable seat.
